This publication is a revision to the August, 1962 edition which was prepared by Richard C. Mattson, Field Supervisor.

INTRODUCTION

This publication provides a list of state and national level sources of scholarships, fellowships, and loans available to Montana high school graduates, who wish to continue their education. In addition to these sources, Montana students should be alert for listings of new or revised financial aids.

No attempt has been made to include here the many scholarships available through colleges and universities, nor are local awards, contests, and projects listed because of the impossibility of securing even partial listings of these financial aids. Many scholarships, fellowships, and loans are available through certain business firms, fraternal groups, church groups, and civic organizations which are not listed in many publications on a state or national level.

STATE LIBRARY COMMISSION

HELEN, MONTANA

WHEN YOU SEEK A SCHOLARSHIP, FELLOWSHIP, OR LOAN:

1. Appraise the financial aids listed in this publication.
2. Appraise the financial aids listed in "Publications Listing Scholarships and Fellowships," page 61 of this bulletin.
3. Appraise the financial aids listed in the catalogs of the college(s) or university(ies) of your choice.
4. Appraise the financial aids available on the local level--contest, projects, and awards offered by local business firms, fraternal organizations, civic organizations, sororities, labor unions, professional organizations, and religious organizations.
5. Contact your church leaders regarding national denominational financial aids--including financial aids to church-related colleges and universities.
6. Keep in close contact with your guidance counselor, principal, or superintendent throughout the school year, regarding new or revised financial aids which may not have been made public at the beginning of the school year.
7. Seek scholarship, fellowship, and loan information early in your high school career so you are aware of application deadlines, qualification tests required, and other eligibility standards.
8. When you consider the financial aids available at a college or university, be sure to compare the amount of the financial aid to the total cost of attending the college or university. It may cost you more to attend a college or university that offers considerable financial aid than to attend a college or university from which you might receive considerably less, or no financial aid, because of the high costs of attending the college or university offering greater financial assistance.
9. Do not overlook the possibility of a Cooperative Work-Study Program at the college or university which you plan to attend. Many colleges and universities have established such programs. In some of these programs, the student takes less academic work and thus may take five years to earn a degree. In other programs, the student works on a job which is the same as or similar to the type of vocation for which he is training. In some colleges or universities, all students work as well as study. Publications such as the College Blue Book, Christian E. Burckel, Editor, Universal Lithographers, Inc., Baltimore, Maryland, 1959, offer a complete listing of colleges and universities which offer Cooperative Work-Study Programs.

In any case, if it is necessary for you to earn a portion of the cost of attending college or university while in attendance, check this possibility with the college or university of your choice.

REMEMBER -- No single reference has all the information you need. Apply early. Make several applications. Follow every lead. Financial aid is available.
